

Looking for families of girls with autism...

If you are the parent or caregiver of a girl diagnosed with an autism spectrum disorder, this study may be for you!

How do girls come to get an autism diagnosis?

Research Study

Why?

Help USC researchers understand how families come to get an autism diagnosis for their daughter.

Where?

Interviews will take place over Zoom or over the phone.

What do I have to do?

Participate in one audio-recorded interview and fill out a short survey (1.5-2 hours) to tell your story of getting an autism diagnosis and services for your daughter.

You will receive a gift card for your time.

If you have questions or are unsure if you meet the requirements, please contact us!

Amber Angell, PhD, OTR/L
Principal Investigator
aangell@usc.edu
(323) 442-5964

Are you eligible?

- 18 years or older
- The parent or caregiver of a girl (12 years or younger) who has been diagnosed with autism
- Speak English or Spanish