The Regional Center System

The Department of Developmental Services contracts with and provides oversight to nonprofit, private agencies called Regional Centers. There are twenty-one Regional Centers in California, seven of which are in Los Angeles County. Regional Centers serve children, juveniles, and adults who have developmental disabilities.

Developmental disabilities include intellectual disability (formerly known as mental retardation), autism spectrum disorder, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, and other disabling conditions found to be closely related to intellectual disability or that require treatment similar to that required by individuals with intellectual disability.

The Regional Center exists as a local resource to help find and access services available to individuals with developmental disabilities and their families.

for Adult and Juvenile Criminal Justice Agencies

Los Angeles County Regional Centers will respond to calls from law enforcement and judicial personnel to help identify suspected persons detained or arrested who are Los Angeles County Regional Center consumers (both adults and juveniles).

- ➔ The first step is to identify which Regional Center serves the arrested person. Provided on the back of this brochure are telephone numbers for each Regional Center. Information for determining the appropriate Regional Center for a particular zip code is listed on the back of this brochure.
- ➔ The Regional Center in whose zip code area the person lives should be contacted between the hours of 8:30 AM and 5:00PM. Calls should go to the contact numbers for each regional center listed on the back of this publication.
- ➔ Give the name of the person and birth date and identify yourself as a law enforcement or judicial officer. The receptionist will put you in touch with Regional Center staff who can assist.
- ➔ If the person is identified as a Regional Center consumer, that staff member will ensure that services have been initiated, or that will inform you as to whether the person is a consumer of a different Regional Center or is not a consumer of any Regional Center.
- ➔ If the person is not a Regional Center consumer, but you believe the person may qualify, the Regional Center in whose zip code area the person resides should be contacted to initiate the eligibility determination process.
- ➔ For emergencies, each regional center has an after hours response system that can be reached via the phone numbers indicated on the back of this brochure.
